In August 1945 there were eight generators in the hydro-power plant at Supung (Suiho) (124-58, 40-28). During the Soviet occupation of Manchuria, four of these generators were removed to the USSR. Of the four generators now at the plant one is of German make and three of Japanese make. Two of these generators are not in running order. The other two have a combined capacity of 50,000 KW and are operated eight hours daily.
